School of Languages, Literatures and Cultural Studies Research and Ethics Committee: Overview for students, supervisors and researchers

Staff, PG students and UG students (Capstone projects):

UG and PG students must discuss their research plans and ethics application with their supervisor before submitting an ethics application.

- Please apply for research ethics approval through the REAMs portal.

The links also contain information on the process and advice on how to apply.

To ensure a smooth process through the SLLCS Research and Ethics Committee please make sure you read the College's Policy on Good Research Practice document.

- You should consult the most recent one (updated in February 2024), in particular pp. 14-19:
- Pay particular attention to the storage of your research data which must correspond to what is outlined in the above document (p. 19).

Once you have submitted your application through REAMs, it will be reviewed by two members of the School Research and Ethics Committee. If required, you will receive an email prompting you to make changes to your ethics application based on the recommendations of the reviewers.
