

Biography: Prof. Stefania Tutino, University of California (UCLA)

Stefania Tutino is a professor of history at UCLA. She works on post-Reformation Catholicism, and more specifically on the relationship between theology and political theory, moral theology, the history of the Society of Jesus, and early modern censorship. She has published on the relationship between conscience and law in Catholic political thought, on the historical role played by the Society of Jesus in early modern Europe, on the Roman Inquisition, and on the intellectual and cultural implications of Catholic moral theology.

Her publications include: A Fake Saint and the Real Church: The Story of a Forgery in Seventeenth-Century Naples, (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2021); Uncertainty in Post-Reformation Catholicism: A History of Probabilism, (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2017); Empire of Souls: Robert Bellarmine and the Christian Commonwealth, (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2011); Law and Conscience: Catholicism in Early Modern England, 1570–1625 (Catholic Christendom, 1300-1700).
