Module Outline:

The Climate Crisis:

This component will concern itself with one of the most pressing political concerns of our time: the climate crisis. This component will offer an introduction to environmental philosophy. We will analyze different understandings of the environment, and question from moral, aesthetic, and political perspectives why we should value and protect it. We will also consider whether or not we should conserve the environment for the sake of current and future generations. Possible solutions to climate change will be addressed and problematized, such as geoengineering, agroforestry, and veganism.
